

To all solicitors:

Publicists or anybody offering paid promotion. Agents, SEO experts, web designers, content creators, or brand managers. Readers/writers just wanting to chat. Anyone with AI-generated pitches of any kind. And, most particularly, scammers offering book club spotlighting for a fee.

1. If all you people claiming to have just "reviewed" or read one of my books had really done so, I'd have sold a lot more copies. None of you have read my work. My sales numbers prove that.
2. The sheer numbers of you sending AI-created praise has exposed you as scammers. Writers write for love. Readers should buy or borrow books and read for love and enjoyment. Your ploys to milk writers for money are offensive. And now the Silent Book Club, which some of you have fraudulently impersonated, has issued a warning. See Silent Book Club
3. I will not respond to your emails and I will block you. Leave me alone. Your scams are mean.
